MEDICINAL

"I wrote to Doctor Pierce, who sent me a very kind letter and advised me."

Thousands of weak and sick women can trace the beginning of a new life of perfect health to that letter written to Dr. Pierce.

Sick and ailing women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence held as strictly private and absolutely confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures weak and aching backs, headaches, nervousness and other womanly ailments by curing the womanly diseases which cause them.

"In the spring of 1900 I became very ill," writes Mrs. Alvina Scholtz, of Lake Washington, Lesueur Co., Minn., "my back was very weak and ached so that I could do no work at all, so I was obliged to take to my bed. I felt a constant desire to urinate and the pains in abdomen were almost unbearable. I wrote to Dr. Pierce, who sent me a very kind letter, and advised me to take his 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took six bottles of each and am a well woman now. I cannot say enough in favor of Dr. Pierce's medicines."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

ALUMNI BANQUET.

Seventy-five sons of the University of Virginia gathered in the banquet hall at the New Willard in Washington last night to do honor to their alma mater and its distinguished founder, Thomas Jefferson.

Worthy tributes were paid to the famous university and the distinguished men it has furnished to the republic, but the great seat of learning was lost sight of in several of the toasts which called forth expressions concerning the President's negro policy and other political questions of moment to the leaders of the great parties.

The response of Gen. Basil Duke, of Kentucky, to the toast, "Our President," was easily the feature of the evening, and was received by hearty applause on the part of many of the Virginians present, and silence on the part of others, which showed that Virginia is divided in its opinion of the President, Gen. Duke is a prominent democratic leader in Kentucky, and an ex-Confederate, who has always been true to the ideals of the South.

He expressed the opinion that President Roosevelt has handled the negro question as well as it would have been possible for any man advanced to office under similar conditions to have done, and said that the President has really done less to give offense to the South than many of his predecessors.

Maj. Robert W. Hunter replied to Gen. Duke in a speech which provoked much applause. "I used to have more hope for the President than I have now," Maj. Hunter said in opening.

"and I hope Gen. Wood will heed the advice which a southern newspaper recently offered to him. It suggested that the next time Gen. Wood strikes the President on the wrist when he is engaged with him in short stick practice, he had better look out or the Chief Executive will draw a razor. I must confess that I don't approve of this superciliously strenuous life."

Maj. Hunter then reviewed the conditions which have led up to the present unrest in the nation and lamented the fact that doors have been thrown open to all nations and that the flag has been raised on foreign shores. "The trouble is that all the lands which should have been held for our children and our grandchildren and great-grandchildren have been taken up by the Medes and Israelites. We have been lugging all sorts of men into our country, and we are bound to suffer for it."

Gen. Fitzhugh Lee responded to the toast "Our Country," which concluded with a plea for the strict enforcement of the Monroe doctrine and the establishment of a navy second to none in the world. Gen. Lee reviewed briefly the establishment of the first colony at Jamestown and the following events, in which Virginia figured so prominently.

He spoke of the civil war and said he had no apologies to offer for the past and felt that Virginians will never be compelled to apologize for the part they are to play in the building up of a reunited nation, which has made such great strides since the war of 1861.

He spoke of the rich islands of the United States has secured in the east, and said: "Cuba must be ours sooner or later. It guards the entrance to the American Mediterranean, upon which so many of our States border, and into which our great Father of Waters pours."

Representative William A. Jones took issue with Gen. Lee and in an eloquent response to the toast, "The Old Dominion," He denounced expansion and the increase of the navy, and expressed the hope that Virginians will never be won over to the policy of extending this nation beyond its present boundaries.

Last night's banquet was given by the Washington Alumni Association of the University of Virginia. Dr. Randolph McKim, of the Church of the Epiphany, acted as toastmaster.

TRIG PLANT REORGANIZATION.—At a meeting of creditors of the William R. Trigg Company in Richmond yesterday at which about 75 per cent. of the local claims were presented, a plan of settlement was reached. All creditors who have claims amounting to $100 or over are to receive 33 1/3 per cent. in cash and the balance in common stock in the new company to be organized immediately upon the ratification of this plan by the out-of-town creditors. Mr. Lillburn T. Myers, receiver for the company, stated emphatically that the American Shipbuilding Company has nothing to do with the new company, but he refused to say who was backing the reorganization scheme financially. A committee was appointed to wait on the creditors who were not represented at the meeting, and as soon as all of these have signed the agreement the contract will be forwarded to the out-of-town creditors for their signatures. Mr. Myers is confident that the deal will go through and that ere long the plant will again be running on full time, and will be stronger financially than ever before.
